

DELUGE OF WEDDING GIFTS RECEIVED AT WHITE HOUSE

"Freak" Presents of Apples, Turnips, Popcorn and Washing Machines Begin to Arrive.

WHITE GLOVES OF EVERY SIZE

Miss Wilson Likely Will Have Two Handsome Diamond and Opal Pendants Set in Platinum.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

Washington, May 2.—A deluge of wedding gifts was received at the White House to-day, on the return of Miss Eleanor Wilson from New York.

While the "freak gifts" did not start to come in mass until this week, they now fill one of the small rooms in the basement of the White House and include barrels of apples, turnips, popcorn, washing machines, sewing machines, cooking utensils and canned goods.

Among the other gifts are boxes of the latest best sellers, gifts of hand-embroidered handkerchiefs and collars, and an untold number of white gloves of every size, with the request that the bride wear them at her wedding and return for a keepsake to the giver.

Andrew Carnegie, who gave Miss Jessie Wilson a wedding gift of a dozen solid silver plates, has also remembered Miss Eleanor Wilson with a handsome silver piece.

The Postmaster-General and Mrs. Burton and their two daughters have combined on a handsome Austrian lavender of one immense opal, set in an oval frame of old gold, studded with pink pearls. The pendant hangs from a three-petal flower of old gold and pearl, centred with two large opals, and is attached to a finely wrought chain of gold and pearls.

It is very likely that Miss Wilson will have two diamond and opal pendants set in platinum for her wedding gifts, as it is understood that Secretary McAdoo will present his bride with a corage piece and pendant of opals and diamonds to match the ring which he gave her as an announcement present.

The other opal ornament will come from the members of the Senate, who have in mind two different pieces of opal and diamond jewelry, but have not decided on which to select.

PREFER JUSTICE TO OLD CHIVALRY

themselves on the ballot, and that one naturally arrived at the question, why should women want to participate in the affairs of government, and why should men not let women to help solve the problems which come before them all? He answered that there were multitudinous reasons why the suffrage should be given the women—the trust problem, for instance.

Men Not the Only Ones Who Shiver.

"Whom does the coal question affect?" he asked. "Does it affect men more than women?" Does it affect trousers more than petticoats? The men are not the only ones who shiver. The men go to their clubs, but the women have to stay at home and cook and care for the children. It is not a masculine problem only. The women who haven't a man to talk to want the right to vote. And those who have husbands would like to vote with them if they are right.

"Look at the war problem now confronting us. You might say that that is a masculine problem, but when you see the homes that give up their boys you will know that it is the women who are affected. It reminds me of the story of a young soldier who was approached by a woman and asked to vote for equal suffrage. 'We are the men who bear arms,' he told her; 'and only we should vote.' 'Yes,' she retorted, 'you bear arms, but we bear arms.' So upon whom shall we depend for the rearing of armies, if not upon the women?"

He entered the moral issues and the liquor traffic as other reasons why women should be allowed to vote.

Problems That Women Face.

"Let the women vote we if they want to," he said. "It is their business. But the men most interested in the liquor traffic are those who are most opposed to woman suffrage. Then there is the problem of child labor, and do you mean to tell me that women haven't as much sense and ability as men to solve that problem? They say women's sphere is in the home. Of course, it is in the home. But isn't the home the place that is the most affected by our laws? Where I came from the women could vote on bond issues, but here, if they owned the whole State, they can't vote even on a bond issue. But a man can come up and vote if he wears trousers. 'The crowd' laughed and cheered. 'Yes,' he went on, 'your women can't vote, but their hired men can.' He said that the old laws of Scripture, such as that which forbade women to speak in church, were still enforced against women, but not against the men. 'Why, a few years ago,' he said, 'women had to demonstrate to the clergy that they had souls, and that they had as much chance as the men to go to heaven. But even then they were antis, people who said to the women, 'why aren't you satisfied?' But finally the clergy found that women did have souls, and that when they entered the next world that they would be on equal terms with the men. Then the women wanted to learn the alphabet, and they still had antis, who asked them what they were kicking about, why they didn't go and cook geese for the husbands, and why they couldn't be satisfied."

"Finally the women got the alphabet, and then they wanted to go to college and get a diploma. But they were told that their duty was motherhood and the care of the home. Finally they got the college, but they still had antis to contend with. Like the poor, the antis are always with you."

Want Share in Government.

"Now the women want to vote, to vote good men in and bad men out of office. And if they should vote bad men into office, it is as much their business as it is ours. They want to share in the control of government. When a man tells me there is no reason for woman suffrage, I feel like hitting him. Why, when they vote it doesn't change their form, or their fashion or their sex. Some say that to drop a ball in a box will make them unusual, will change their form and make them mannish. Why, it is nonsensical."

"Who pays the taxes?" a man yelled from the crowd. The police silenced him.

"You men have sense enough to cut cordwood," Mr. Bryan went on, "and haven't you enough sense to see this? Women are strong enough to bear arms; they are strong enough to bear you, you miserable men. The epithet was lost in the applause which followed the verbal violence.

Mr. Bryan argued that it would be safe for women to have the vote in the South, as it would not develop into a race problem.

"It will not be a negro problem," he said. "The negro woman vote could be handled in the same way as the negro masculine vote, and if you are afraid of the negro man vote why won't you white men get out? Begin by letting the women vote in local ## OPTION ELECTIONS AND IN PRIMARIES. YOU CAN MAKE A STATUTE TO DO THAT. WHY DON'T YOU LET THEM VOTE?" HE CRIED.

Needed in Child Labor Fight.

"We need them in child labor problems and in the problem of woman labor. You appropriate millions to exterminate cow ticks and to prevent the spread of cholera among hogs, but how much do you spend to relieve the women and children of their burden?" He said that he believed there was less sentiment in the South for woman suffrage than anywhere in the country, but that the people would finally see the need for suffrage extension and give the franchise to the women.

As Mr. Bryan finished, Mrs. Valentine announced that he would answer any questions, and the colloquy between him and "Commodore" Smith ensued.

Then, as the sun neared the horizon and shadows were beginning to creep across the grass, the crowd sang together the suffrage song to the air of "America." The first stanza was:

"My country 'tis for thee,
To make your women free,
This is our plea.
High have our hopes been raised
When thou hast lightened days
That for her justly praised
Our land might be."

company a license, McAllister sought to have Button removed from office.

Not Consistent With Facts.

McAllister is said to have made the statement in Bristol that Kabler and Button were guilty of conspiracy to defraud. This, officials of the company declare not to be consistent with the relations existing between Kabler and Button. As a matter of fact, officials of the company say Button and Kabler do not appear to have been on very good terms, due to the commission's recent announcement that he would not relinquish the company to do business in the State.

McAllister is a muscular man, apparently about fifty-five years of age. The sensational charges and arrest caused some excitement here, and during the afternoon the incident was generally commented on in the business centre.

What course McAllister may take under the circumstances and what assistance may come to him is awaited with interest.

A. M. McAllister, who in March filed charges of negligence against Insurance Commissioner Button in regard to his supervision of the Appalachian Insurance Company, spent most of last week in Richmond. He called several times on the members of the State Corporation Commission, Governor Stuart and Commissioner Button. He was finally ordered from the office by Colonel Button.

INSCRIPTION COMPOSED BY SMITH IS CHOSEN

His Lines Will Be Used in Monument Erected to Memory of General Nathaniel Greene.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Charlottesville, Va., May 2.—An inscription composed by Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, of the University of Virginia, has been unanimously accepted for the statue to be erected by the United States government at Guilford Court-house, near Greensboro, N. C., to the memory of the great Revolutionary War hero, General Nathaniel Greene. Professor Smith was invited by the Guilford Battle-ground Company to enter the inscription competition. About thirty other men, distinguished in historical and literary scholarship, accepted similar invitations. Professor Smith entered chiefly for reasons of sentiment, as he is a native of Greensboro, and the battlefield is only a short distance from the place of his birth.

Professor Smith's inscription was unanimously accepted, according to announcement just made by Paul W. Schenck, president of the Guilford Battle-ground Company.

There will be three bronze tablets on the monument. The inscription will, therefore, be divided into three parts. On the first tablet will be a chronological history of General Greene, with dates of the battles which he took part. The second tablet will contain the names of a number of men who fought valiantly with General Greene. The third tablet will contain the eloquent eulogy penned by Professor Smith, as follows:

"In the manoeuvring that preceded it, in the strategy that compelled it, in the heroism that signaled it, and in the results that flowed from it, the battle of Guilford Courthouse is second to no battle fought on American soil. It transformed the American army into pursuers, the British army into fugitives. Over the brave men who fell here, the comrades battled to ultimate victory at Yorktown, and the cause of constitutional self-government to assured triumph at Philadelphia. To officer and private, to Continental soldier and volunteer militiaman, honor and award are alike due. They need neither defense nor eulogy, but only just recognition. A grateful nation erects this monument, therefore, as an expression of its solemn pride in the men who fought here, of its imperishable devotion to their memory, and of its unalterable confidence in the permanence of the principles which their example vindicated."

YOU CAN'T BRUSH OR WASH OUT DANDRUFF

The Simplest and Quickest Way is To Dissolve It.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, use about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and every one notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—Advertisement.
